Beyond the ACA: Toward a Health Care System That Works for All of Us

...Clinton the pragmatic incrementalist and Sanders the bold visionary. But neither of the two candidates is focused on measures, incremental or bold, that move our health care system to focus on promoting good health, demanding that health care providers get paid for quality care or reducing racial inequities in health care.

Skin in the Game or Skinned Alive?

Giving consumers "skin in the game" to "shop" for health care through high deductibles and co-pays does not look like a very effective way to control health care costs.

Concern Mounts on Windham Hospital Cuts

Scrutiny and criticism of cuts and service changes at Windham Community Memorial Hospital by its parent company, Hartford HealthCare, is growing.

Runaway Income Inequality: I'm Mad as Hell

It strikes me that the current cultural wars in our country stem, in part, from what I call a "scarcity mentality" that there is not enough money to go around. This is what I had the opportunity to discuss on a panel to about 75 fellow Nutmeggers, as we examined "runaway income inequality" and its impact on racial justice.

Key Quote:

"We felt it was our duty to grant them seed money with the belief that it would attract more support for their venture. C-HIT has since thrived and is a true independent source for healthcare news in the state."
